Happenings' Free Show

Tom Giuliano was described as "the paperboy who was working his way through college but decided he liked being a paperboy better."

Bernie La Porta was "a sensitive musician who cuddles his electric guitar close to his heart," but this practice was "dangerous because Dave likes to pour water over the strings while Bernie is playing."

Dave is the curly-haired member of the group who has often been described as having a "new hair style—SOS pad with auburns."

Bob Miranda "wants to go to Italy and become a movie star. He's learning to speak dotted English."

On stage, the routine of The Happenings is varied. They can do everything from straight ballads to take-offs on other groups, including The Beach Boys, The Rolling Stones and The Four Seasons.

MUSICIANS ALSO

In addition to being accomplished vocalists, the boys play the piano, organ, trumpet and drums, and are rated as one of the groups most likely to succeed in the late 1960's.

The concert is free to the student body, and no tickets are required for admission. Students must, however, present their activity cards and seats are on a first-come, first-served basis.

Also scheduled for the Cotillion are two dances Saturday, Nov. 16. The dance in the Wilkinson Center ballroom will be a rock dance, and the cost is 75 cents per person. The Cannon Center dance is a conventional dance, and the cost is also 75 cents per person. Both dances are to begin at 8:30 p.m.

HAPPENING THURSDAY

...at BYU are The Happenings—New Jersey singers who will entertain Sophomore Cotillion—goes Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse. The Happenings' concert will be on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Humphrey Concedes Election To Nixon

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, his voice choking with emotion, conceded the presidential election Wednesday to Richard M. Nixon.

"I've done my best, I've lost. Mr.

Nixon has won. The democratic process has worked its will, so let's get on with the urgent task of uniting this country," Humphrey told several hundred cheering admirers at his hotel headquarters.

He said he had spoken with Nixon on the telephone and sent him a telegram stating that "according to the unofficial returns you are the winner in this election."

"My congratulations. Please know that you will have my support in leading this nation."

"NOT EASY"
Humphrey, with his wife, Muriel, by his side, told his supporters that "I really don't feel very badly. I don't want any sympathy. Be of good cheer—I'd even like to have you feel a little happy, although I know it's not easy."

But the vice president's face and his voice belied his words. Several times his voice almost broke and his smile was a brave effort on a very sad face.

"I feel a sense of release and grief," he said, "and I hope some of you feel that way too."

He said it had been an uphill fight all the way, "and I never had any doubt it would be a close fight."

Thanking his supporters, Humphrey pledged that he would "dedicate myself to a vital Democratic party and continue to work in the cause of human rights, of peace, and the betterment of man."

Ending his speech at one point with a "Thank you," Humphrey returned to the microphone after another ovation, and said, "Now let's have some fun... I haven't mowed the lawn for some time, and there are still some things to do around home."

Deadlock Resolved — Dick Wins

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican Richard M. Nixon was elected 37th President of the United States Tuesday and won an immediate pledge of support from Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey, the man he narrowly defeated.

Capping a remarkable political comeback, Nixon surged to the White House on the crest of close windup victories in California, his native state, Illinois and Ohio.

Through the long night after the polls had closed Nixon and Humphrey were in a virtual deadlock—and they nearly tied in the popular vote. Nixon's edge at 12:30 p.m. EST was only 120,017 votes with more than 67 million votes cast.

But in the electoral vote column, where presidencies are won, Nixon had 287, Humphrey 172 and George C. Wallace, the American Independent party candidate, 45. Victory required 270 electoral votes.

OVER TOP

The 55-year-old former vice president went over the top at 11:35 a.m. EST by capturing Illinois' 26 electoral votes. Earlier he had reached the White House doorstep by taking California's 40 and Ohio's 26 votes.

Humphrey threw in the towel at noon in a somber, emotional speech at his Minneapolis hotel headquarters. A half-hour later, Nixon said at his New York City hotel headquarters that the "great objective of this administration will be to bring the American people together."

"This will be an open administration," he promised, "open to men and women of both parties." He said he wished to "bridge the generation gap, bridge the racial gap," adding: "We want to bring Americans together."

LBJ CONGRATS

Nixon said President Johnson also wired congratulations and that he was heading for a vacation in Florida but would call first on former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, recuperating at Walter Reed Army Hospital here from a series of heart attacks.

Wrap-up By Rather

Dan Rather, CBS White House correspondent and recent participant in the television marathon following Tuesday's election, will give a presidential wrap-up today in the Smith Fieldhouse.

The forum assembly will begin at 10 a.m.

Mr. Rather's past assignments have included Vietnam, race riots, and the assassination of President Kennedy.

A Texas native he has also travelled throughout South America including some of its biggest hot spots.

Golfing is one of the items that occupies a soft spot in my heart. Unlike other golfers, I don't particularly care about the score. The main thing meritorious of consideration in golf is the enjoyment derived. Look at it logically. Where else, for instance, can someone pay good hard-earned money to walk over a mile chasing a stupid little white ball? The fact the ball is white isn't as disturbing as the fact you hit the thing so you have something to chase.

Intuitively, the idea is insane; but people, I included, love it. Business deals have been consummated, fortunes lost and wives made "widows" over a simple inanimate white ball. About now, one asks, "Okay, so what does all this prove?" By now, it should be intuitively obvious.

GILLESPIE'S BIRD

Our friend Roger was out the other day playing golf with one of his instructors. Roger has been playing with his pro for many years and has yet to beat him. This day in particular, Rog was on the fourteenth, shooting for a bird, when a funeral procession passed by. As a matter of courtesy prior to putting, Rog stood up, took off his hat and waited for the party to pass. As he finished putting out, his partner turned and said, "that is one of the most courteous things I've ever seen you do in all the years we've been playing golf. Why, next Friday you will have been your twenty fifth wedding anniversary."

Golfing can make schizophrenics of most of us, but the Skits-O-Frantic Dance is for all of us. Saturday in the Ballroom for 25 cents, you can rock to the sounds of "The Determined."

True to the form of a great university, there is something for all in the way of a dance on Saturday. "The Now Scene" turns Cannon Center into a ballroom paradise at 8:30 p.m. Bring your own best girl or stag it; in any event, have fun. The d.p. is 50 cents.

SURFERS ARISE

Attention California Surfers! There will be a surfing flick shown in the Ballroom Friday at 7:30 p.m. "The Endless Summer" is the movie. Immediately after the show, "The Determined" rock out and invite you to join in the meriment. The movie and dance cost 50 cents.

"A Man Called Peter" is the feature at the University Cinema this week. This is a moving story of a dedicated man who became a chaplain in the Senate of the United States.

"Fail Safe" screens in the Joseph Smith Auditorium. So the story concerns a SAC bomber that is loaded with a nuclear bomb that goes on to target. Can it be stopped? See the flick, I don't know.

THE ORIGINAL SHREW

"Taming of the Shrew," in the original Shakespeare, is the feature in the Variety Theater. We all know about the play and about the star, Elizabeth Taylor. For sure a warmer is here. By the way, original Shakespeare can be a challenge. It may pay to pursue a copy of the play before listening to L.R.

Further culture may be obtained at the showing of "Othello," starring Laurence Olivier, at the Paramount. This is a film of a performance of the National Theatre of Great Britain.

"Cranberry Days" is a plan of the ASBYU Social Office to augment the days around Thanksgiving. Special activities and a dance are planned for the season. If you want to work on any program, they need help, apply by application to the Social Office on the fourth floor of the Wilkinson Center.

WANT ADS

Wanted: some dates for some pretty cokes. Linda Joy, Jan, Sam, Karen and Mary Nell all invite the men of BYU to take them out on the town. They like to have a good time. I'm not telling you their address but try calling 375-0339. They'll love it.

Wanted: sufficient people to fill the White House, Bob, Okie, Dun, Wayne, John, Dameron, Kevin, Gary, Rex, Dun and Jess invite interested parties to a party Friday at their home. I forgot to ask the address; if you want it call 374-6622.

BELT IT OUT

For kicks, Paul Proctor invites me the swinging way to get your charge in the cafeteria is to ride the belt that carries trays to the kitchen. I don't recommend it, but the guy who knocks garbage off of trays will probably blow his mind when your hunk arrives.

Have a Happy.

Editorial . . .

Nixon Task: Rebuild America

Richard M. Nixon was elected President yesterday by a slim vote margin—but that margin of victory was enough to save the United States from facing a grim crisis.

Several critics of the Constitution charged that if no candidate could grab the electoral majority to win the presidency and the decision went to the House of Representatives, the unrest which now exists in the country would grow increasingly out of proportion.

Certainly President-elect Nixon has a big job in front of him. Issues such as the war in Vietnam, civil rights, law and order, pollution in the air and a Democratic majority in both the House and Senate would be enough to create a less pleasant atmosphere in which to start.

But Nixon's pledge to "bring us to the appropriate for our times. Meanwhile students who supported Hubert H. Humphrey would realize that the Chief Executive spot is over for another. We're no longer Republicans, Democrats, Independents, but Americans!

And another contest has ended. Democracy is declared the winner.

Liquor Defeat Removes 'Dangle'

Utahns dealt the liquor initiative petition a staggering blow Tuesday—nearly 65 per cent of the voters vetoed the proposal.

"The defeat of the bill was due to the efforts of thousands of enthusiastic volunteers," commented Richard A. Van Winkle, head of the committee opposing the petition.

President McKay commended the efforts of all concerned: "I am grateful for the efforts of those, both in the church and out of the church, who worked so energetically to bring about this result. I am satisfied that what has been accomplished is the best interest of the people of the state and particularly of our youth. Now let the legislature solve the problems in the present law."

The bill was soundly defeated—so why now? Does the mud-slinging so often in half-truths and vengeful imputations call for a reaction count only be disastrous to Utah. As the UNIVERSITY previously has been the liquor-by-the-drink proposal has created of the inadequacies of the present liquor law the proposal did not satisfactorily fill the existing laws.

Gov. Rampton urged opponents to improve with their recommendation of forward the situation.

This is what must be done, but in a Propositions and opponents must now on a unitedly formulate a workable liquor law, benefit Utah, and not just a select few.

Gallup Poll Wins By Percentage

NEW YORK (AP) — The Gallup poll, of the two most widely published national public opinion polls, came closest to calling the 1968 presidential election on the basis of unofficial returns.

Both Gallup and the Harris poll correctly forecast that the outcome would be very close. But their final pre-election figures were clouded by the 3 to 4 per cent built-in statistical margin of error they cite. The final figures from Gallup and Harris were within this spread.

Gallup, after allocating undecided votes, gave Richard M. Nixon 43 per cent of the vote, Hubert H. Humphrey 42 and George C. Wallace 15.

Harris gave Humphrey 43 per cent, Nixon 40, Wallace 13 and left 4 per cent undecided.

With 92 per cent of the vote counted, both Nixon and Humphrey stood at 43 per cent. Wallace had 14 per cent.

Neither poll attempted the popular vote into close. George H. Gallup, Jr., said the poll may turn out to be accurate in the instant history. He said final Gallup figures were accurate within 1.5 per cent, since 1952.

"This year's first record average," Gallup said, "was on air."

The vote figures for represented a strong swing poll's assessment of his the final days of the campaign. August Gallup survey, for example, Nixon led Wallace 48 to 34.

The role of the major poll sharp questioning this year after changes that the Harris and Wallace made, including press in Illinois, New York and correctly called the outcome, although there were percentages.

The poll released Monday by the University of Utah was the first of the opinions of college students. UNIVERSITY poll indicated for Nixon as President, R. Governor and the defeat of the Harris poll.

Wallace-Humphrey: One Thing in Common

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace said today he considered his run for the presidency successful because "the other two parties ended up sounding like we were sounding."

Wallace said he considered his American Independent party movement a "bellsword" for the two national parties.

"We showed them what the issues were," Wallace said today.

He continued: "Mr. Nixon, especially in the last few weeks, was saying many of the same things we were saying."

Wallace made the remarks in a statement at a luncheon for his staff and newsmen who had followed him throughout his campaign.

He also read the following telegram he had sent to Richard M. Nixon: "My congratulations and best wishes and I wish you every success in leading our great nation."

Later Wallace said, "I do wish for Mr. Nixon the most success of any President in the history of our country, and I hope he can unite the nation."

"And to Mr. Humphrey," Wallace grinned, "I can say we do have something new in common."

DOUBLE STANDARD

Editor: Does BYU enforce a double standard?

In the SALT LAKE TRIBUNE (Sunday, November 3, p. 8B), Dr. LeMay is reported to have said, in regard to the visit of Gen. LeMay, "That no signs, placards or banners of any kind would be allowed." Yet, in attending the speech, I noticed innumerable signs, placards and banners proclaiming that we should all support Gov. Wallace. Is this the way BYU enforces its policies?

These students who have indicated their opposition to Gen. LeMay were told by the administration that they could bring no signs of any kind (that included the mere wearing of a black armband to indicate dissatisfaction); while those who support him wore hats, banners and anything else one would imagine.

I ask the administration: why is this type of "double standard" being enforced? Why is the rule for one the rule for another? I hesitate to claim that the administration has shown favoritism, but why this lack of fairness? I would like to know the answer, and I am sure many others would, too.

INFILTRATORS

Editor: To avoid using the term "Communist infiltration" loosely, may I give the following facts in connection with the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society). According to the House Committee on Un-American Activities, the SDS in Chicago were planned, months in advance.

A meeting which took place on Feb. 11, 1964, at 407 South Dearborn St., Room 4008, in Chicago, had been called by the National Movement Committee to End the Vietnam War. The SDS leaders, and Abbie Hoffman, who called the SDS a "front" for the Communist Party, were present. Not all SDS members are Communists. Many active members have been expelled for their desire to destroy, to annihilate, to destroy, to annihilate, to destroy, to annihilate.

Why invest your education in a ho-hum job!

Young pace-setters turn us on...new ideas, creativity and a fresh outlook on life is what Keebler is all about.

We're happy to be called boat-rockers... wave-makers... tradition breakers. We've earned this reputation through the young, strong, and imaginative men who lead our Company. We take pride in this image... so forgive us if we pop a shirt button or two.

We're the nation's second largest producer of cookies, crackers and snack foods. This is one of the fastest growing and most exciting areas of the food industry. Keebler's pace-setters are 7000 strong, located at 90 locations in nearly every state across the country. New products, expanding markets, and a dedication to growth mean opportunities galore throughout our Company. We need pace-setters in sales, marketing, accounting, distribution, production, engineering . . . and a broad range of other interests.

When you consider your investment in a career, check Keebler's portfolio . . . We're sure you'll be interested in the dividends.

For your initial investment . . . call 312-833-2900 or write Tom Kenehan, Keebler Company, 677 Larch Avenue, Elmhurst, Illinois 60126.

Dear Mr. Doan:

Business has cast itself in the role of the doting parent, scratching its corporate head and asking: Now where have I gone wrong? We on the other side of the aptly-named generation gap can readily answer your question. The question we can't answer—and the one you must answer—is more difficult: What does, and what will, business do right?

The image that the corporate world has created in the academic world is a highly negative one. Business, which has sold us everything from living space to living brains, has been unable to sell itself. Hopefully, our dialogue will help dispel the "business myth"—although all myths are based on varying degrees of truth.

And what exactly is this image? It's that of a potential vehicle for social change overcome by its own inertia. Business has an immense social power which is exceeded only by its inadequate social commitment. This is not to deny that many major corporations are involved in health research, agricultural improvement, etc. But what we question is whether business is really carrying—or plans to carry—its share of the social burden.

A psychologist's association test, for instance, would yield such verbal gems as "business" and "air pollution," "business" and "war-profiteering," "business" and "planned obsolescence." You yourself know only too well the two-syllable associative response generated by "Dow Chemical." It is hard for us to applaud a new measles vaccine juxtaposed with such immoralities.

Thus, many of the qualities we associate with business are contrary to our very way of life. We have awakened from the sleepy fifties and have begun to challenge both political and social tenets. Yet, while we question our involvement in a more-than-questionable war, business apparently closes its eyes and fills its wallets.

This is what troubles us. As corny as it sounds, we do hope to change the world. Business, meanwhile, is trying to change its image. But in so doing, it is merely creating a battle of antithetical stereotypes.

Thus unless it decides to give itself—and not merely its image—a major overhaul, business can continue to write off a growing segment of college youth. Perhaps our dialogue will help give the corporate world the rectal kick it so desperately needs.

Sincerely,

Stan Chess
Journalism, Cornell

Forget your image, business... Overhaul yourself

IS ANYBODY LISTENING TO CAMPUS VIEWS? BUSINESSMEN ARE.

Three chief executive officers—The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's Chairman, Russell DeYoung, The Dow Chemical Company's President, H. D. Doan, and Motorola's Chairman, Robert W. Galvin—are responding to serious questions and viewpoints posed by students about business and its role in our changing society, and from their perspective as heads of major corporations are exchange-

Dear Mr. Chess:

I agree with you that business has done a wretched job of selling itself. We tend to feel that our role in developing the highest living standards in the world is self-explanatory, and doesn't need much selling; and we are so busy, and engrossed, in what we're doing that we don't really have time to "sell" what we do.

Simple explanations of why a company is producing a product in the national interest don't provide the answer to "selling" business, as we at Dow are all too well aware. The fact that in the judgments of our military leaders the tactical use of napalm is effectively saving lives of our troops, and serves an indispensable need in accelerating the end of a dirty and unpopular war... the fact that there simply is no truth to reports of massive casualties among Vietnamese women and children resulting from napalm... the fact that hundreds of American doctors who have volunteered their services in Vietnamese hospitals report not having a single civilian napalm burn case, all are documented facts blandly ignored by those not responsive to reason. But I have yet to hear criticism of napalm from any returning combat veteran.

Doesn't this really mean that judgments should be made on the basis of objective inquiry and not unfounded opinion? Honest differences will always arise. But a better understanding of viewpoints and motives will follow from objective discussions. Business must sell "itself", not an image of itself.

It is from this perspective that I think we should examine your central question of "whether business is really carrying—or plans to carry—its share of the social burden."

You are of course aware of business' direct involvement in contemporary community affairs through such programs as those dealing with hard-core unemployment, blight-area housing, civil rights, traffic congestion, and pollution problems. To me these programs are evidence that business today is assuming a much more active social role. But this does not answer two questions fundamental to your inquiry: to what extent should business, as an economic vehicle whose primary commitment to the community lies in its economic functions—assume social burdens; and how can these social responing views through means of a campus [Corporate Dialogue Program on specific issues raised by leading student spokesmen.

Here, Stan Chess, a Journalism senior at Cornell, is exploring issues with Mr. Doan.

In the course of the entire Dialogue Program, David M. Butler, in Electrical Engineering Program at Michigan State, also will exchange viewpoints with Mr. Doan; as will Mark Bookspan, a Chemistry major at Ohio State, and David G. Clark, Political Science MA candidate at abilities be discharged most effectively?

Obviously all of society's institutions must assume some share of the burden; there is no sole responsibility. Can you visualize a solution in which only one segment of society provides equal opportunity for Negroes?

I believe maximum long-term profit growth is consistent with, and in fact must be achieved without, maximum service to society. Maximum service to society can be achieved only through maximum development of, and release of, the ability of individuals. And maximum release of individual abilities brings about maximum profit-growth.

Further, in my view, service cannot be delivered best by deliberately trying to be of service. Service can more often be achieved by indirect than by any direct attempt to be of service.

Business does so many things right that I don't really see this as an issue. We have developed a system that the rest of the world is frantically trying to copy. It is the worst system going except for all those other systems. Business can't do everything for everyone, of course; it wasn't designed for that. Like all of us, it should be doing what it does best. As an economic instrument, it can best fulfill its social commitment by excelling in that respect.

Our nation is going through a period of transition to new policies and new philosophies. Your generation on the campus is doing us a real service by questioning our assumptions, and by making us aware of hypocrisies and outmoded parts of our systems and institutions. You want to do away with outmoded ideology and so do I. As new values are accepted which emphasize the role of the individual in society today, and new relationships develop between the public and private sector of society, then more realistic answers will be found as to how business, in harness with government and education, can share the social burden by providing real—rather than illusory—service.

Cordially,

H. D. Doan, President,
The Dow Chemical Company

Stanford, with Mr. DeYoung; and similarly, Arthur M. Kiebnoff, in Liberal Arts at Yale, and Arnold Shelby, Latin American Studies at Tulane, with Mr. Galvin.

Campus comments are invited, and should be forwarded to Mr. DeYoung, Goodyear, Akron, Ohio. So far, according to Dr. Palmer, BYU is the only place where laser is being used for this type of research. There are groups in Germany, New York, and Arizona that are setting up to begin using laser, but they are not working yet.

Registration for preliminary competition in the Heber J. Grant Oratorical Contest must be completed by Friday.

Competition is slated for Monday and Tuesday, according to chairman Carol Jensen.

The contest is held in honor of the birthdate of the late Heber J. Grant, former president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Through this contest young people are encouraged "to write and speak about important LDS concepts," said Miss Jensen.

All regularly enrolled BYU undergraduates are eligible to participate. Speeches must be original and eight to 10 minutes in length. The subject must be "some faith-promoting topic." Participants must be prepared to submit manuscripts to the judges if requested.

Registration information may be obtained by contacting the Speech Dept. office, D-561 Harris Fine Arts Center; Dr. Gary Peterson, F-533

HFAc, or the registration desk in the Wilkinson Center Thursday and Friday.

Finale in the competition will be at the November 19 Devotional Assembly.

The contest was begun in 1921 by President Grant and Dr. Earl Pardoe, to promote public speaking among youth of the Church.

After Pres. Grant died his daughters continued to sponsor the annual event. Traditionally, several members of the Grant family attend the contest.

Three Colleges Pick Assistant Deans

Three BYU professors have been named as associate or assistant deans in three separate BYU colleges.

Named as associate dean in the College of Education under Dean Antonio K. Romney is Dr. Stephen L. Alley, who also retains his present chairmanship of the Teacher Education Department.

Dr. Clayne R. Jensen, professor in the Men's Physical Education Dept., is now assistant to Dr. Milton F. Hartvigsen, dean of the College of Physical Education.

Named as assistant dean in the College of Business is Dr. Bryce B. Orton, professor of accounting, who will assist Dean Weldon J. Taylor.

Dr. Alley, who has been chairman of the Department of Teacher Education since 1963, received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Utah in 1947 and 1951, respectively, and was granted an Ed.D. at Harvard University in 1958.

During 1962-63, Dr. Alley served as chief of party (administrator) at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, under the Agency for International Development through the University of Utah.

Dr. Jensen, who served in the Marine Corps from 1953-56 and was commissioned a captain, received his B.S. and M.S. degrees at the University of Utah in 1952 and 1956, respectively, and earned his Ph.D. in 1962 at Indiana University.

Get 'Help Over Hump' At Counseling Center

One of the greatest goals of the Counseling Center is to help the individual maximize his potential and get the most out of his college experience, according to Dr. Vern H. Jensen, Counseling Director.

The counselor's general responsibility is to work with students "needing help over the hump." His major objective is to help the individual become independent. The counselor doesn't make decisions but helps the student make decisions for himself.

"A counselor is not just a listening post. He may offer suggestions, ask questions or point out inconsistencies in the student's thoughts. A counselor helps the student to explore things he has not discovered for himself," said Dr. Jensen.

Although a student may not get the answer to his problem in one interview, he may be helped towards the solution of his problem. If more help is needed the student is invited to return.

Students may make appointments by calling Ext. 2061 or by going to C-273 Smoot Administration Bldg.

LBJ Wires Congratulations To Nixon

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson wired congratulations to Richard M. Nixon Wednesday on his presidential election victory and pledged that "I shall do everything in my power to make your tenure lighter."

Johnson told the Republican victor that the responsibilities of leadership today are too heavy and too important "to be also encumbered by narrow partisanship."

He added: "I hope that our people will turn now from the divisive contentions of the political campaign to a united search for peace and social justice."

Johnson and Nixon are expected to get together in the near future to discuss the changeover and the search for peace in Vietnam.

Just when this will be has not been determined, but White House press secretary George Christian said it will not take place when Nixon stops in Washington Wednesday en route to Florida. Nixon plans to visit with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Contributions Aid Iranians

BYU's Nationalist Iranian Students have collected $649.60 to aid the victims of Iran's recent earthquakes. The money was collected during a campaign held in Provo this fall, Akbar Nourmounesh, the group's president, announced Wednesday.

A check for earthquake aid was mailed to the Iranian Nationalist Center three weeks ago. The collection came from funds contributed by Provo Citizens and BYU students.

Nonetheless expressed appreciation to those who helped with or donated to the fund.

Beehive State's Bunny Stalkers In Paradise

By Bruno Vassel III
Universe sports writer

Six of us were just starting to spread out in the sagebrush and rock-covered hills when Linda cried, "There goes one!" A fat little cottontail scurried around a small pile of rocks and headed south, back feet spinning as he shifted into overdrive.

Dave jerked his 12-gauge shotgun to his shoulder and frantically tried to put up the bunny as it wheeled and darted around sagebrush.

After what seemed to be an eternity, Dave's shotgun barked out a load of number six shot.

SHOT SAGE

A five-foot circle of sagebrush just behind the rabbit hit the dust. Our track star streaked up a small hill and dropped out of sight.

As I turned to tell Can that it looked like a good day for rabbit hunting, her 410 single shot blasted at a second bunny.

Camille and Lynn were already out of sight after a huge blacktailed jackrabbit.

GOOD HUNTING

Utah offers great hunting for cottontail and snowshoe rabbits and both black and white-tailed jackrabbits.

The short-eared, powder puff tailed cottontail rabbit is probably best known for his delicious taste. Millions of bunnies are taken throughout the United States each year.

Best areas in the State for cottontails are around Duchesne, Roosevelt and Vernal. I have found some good shooting by simply driving along highway 40 until I saw a likely spot, one with river beds, dry washes, rocky hills or sagebrush.

HARES APLENTY

Around Eureka and Mammoth, Vernon, and Delta are all places where some cottontails can be found. Anywhere you find heavy brush and dry washes, you will also find bunnies.

A small game or combination license is required for hunting cottontails, and there is a ten rabbit bag limit per day. No license is required, soe is there a bag limit on the snowshoe or jackrabbits.

Second true member of the rabbit family is the snowshoe rabbit, which is two to three pounds larger than the cottontail, lives at higher elevations and makes excellent eating.

The Strawberry Mountains, Alta, Big Horn, the Uintas and around the Timpangaw ski area all have snowshoes. Altitudes of eight to ten pounds, several feet of snow and willows or conifer trees are what the snowshoe rabbit likes.

DRESS WARM

Hunting in such an area can be great fun if you dress for it with high boots or snowshoes. In the snow it is not difficult to track these large rabbits, though they do change color and become white in winter. A 22 or shotgun will work well in hunting snowshoe rabbits.

Both white and black-tailed jackrabbits are not really rabbits, but rather hares. The whitetailed jack is very large, often reaching eight to ten pounds, while the blacktailed jack seldom exceeds three.

Whitetailed jackrabbits are found at relatively high altitudes in the Strawberry, Scofield, Soldier Summit, Duchesne and Fruittland areas. Like the snowshoe rabbit, the whitetailed jack turns white in the winter except for the tips of its ears which remain black.

Some people say that young whitetailed jacks are good to eat. The big old ones are quite tough.

Blacktailed jackrabbits are found throughout the western part of the state, not only in such areas as Cedar, Rush and Skull Valleys but almost all sagebrush covered areas. They are not good to eat.

AP Tabs Collegiate Conquests

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press SPORTS Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Anyway you look at it, Saturday's clash between unbeaten Penn State and rugged Miami, Fla., boils down to a Ted-to-Ted confrontation.

Ted Kwalick, State's tremendous tight end, will be tangling with Ted Hendricks, the Hurricanes' towering defensive end.

Kwalick, a 6-foot-4, 230-pound blocking and pass-catching marvel, saved the Nittany Lion's No. 4 national ranking last Saturday by scooping up an onside Army kickoff and rambling 53 yards for the deciding touchdown in a 29-24 victory over the Cadets.

Hendricks, a 6-foot-8, 222-pound All-American, sparked a Miami defensive charge that demolished Pitt 48-0 last Friday night.

The hunch is that Kwalick, fleet halfbacks Bob Campbell and Charlie Pittman and the nifty Nittany Lion defensive unit will prevail in a tight squeeze.

We creep into the dog days of a long season with a .716 accuracy mark on 295 correct picks, 103 blunders and 14 standoffs, with the ties counted against us. Last week's slate was 42-13-2.

Here's the way some of the other top games around the country this weekend look from here: Alabama over Louisiana State; LSU's Charlie McClelland, a coaching disciple of "Papa's" Bear Bryant, hasn't beaten the Master in four tries. Purdue over Minnesota; Leroy Keyes & Co. snaged Minnesota's Rose Bowl plans last fall with a 41-12 zinger. They should win again.

Tennessee over Auburn: The Plainsmen will be a high hurdle for unbeaten Tennessee to clear. But the Vols have the perfect answer...High harder Richard Flowers.

Southern California over California: Orange Juice Simpson, limited to 67 rushing yards by Oregon last week, is due to break free again.

Kansas over Oklahoma: The second "s" in Jayhawk quarterback Bob Douglas' name stands for sensational. Texas A&M over Southern Methodist: Texas popped the SMU balloon last Saturday.

...directed at Cougar split end Eddie Romero, was broken up by a tremendous defensive effort of a Utah Redskin late in the second quarter. The Utes prevented a BYU attempt at a sure touchdown and held on for a 30-21 victory. Romero is a bright spot in the Mountain Cats' passing attack, leading the team in receptions with 21 catches for 228 yards.

BYU-Gridders Host Utags

With everything to gain and nothing to lose, the BYU football team will be "showing the works" at the Utah State University gridders when the Utags arrive in Provo Saturday for a resumption of hostilities in the intense in-state rivalry.

Kickoff time will be 1:30 p.m. with a near-capacity crowd expected in the 30,000-seat BYU stadium.

Coach Tommy Hudspeth's Cougars are 1-5 on the season while USU is 5-2, but a closer examination of these records show they will have little bearing on the outcome of Saturday's game.

WAC DARK HORSE

BYU at the start of the year was considered a darkhorse in the Western Athletic Conference race, and would be in contention for the WAC title if it weren't for losses to defending champion Wyoming and powerful Texas. El Paso after the Cougars held commanding leads entering the fourth quarter of both contests.

Throw in last Saturday's narrow defeat at the hands of Utah in a contest up for grabs until the final moments and a non-conference loss to Iowa state in a game dominated statistically by BYU, and the woe-doest state could just as well be reversed.

Another factor USU must consider is that it has not defeated the Cougars in Provo since the opening of the new stadium.

COUGAR REVENGE

In addition, the Utags realize that Hudspeth will have his team higher than the proverbial kite to seek revenge for a 30-9 setback handed BYU by the U-Staters in Logan last fall. BYU was a heavy favorite entering that fray.

USU had last weekend off and had most of its coaching staff in attendance at the BYU-Utag game at Salt Lake City. They were most impressed with the hard-hitting Cougar defense led by All-America linebacker candidate Craig Bozich.

Bozich, a 213-lb. senior from Aurora, Colo., made 11 unassisted tackles and aided on 14 others against the Uter and leads BYU defensive statistics with 103 points. End Jeff Slipp is second with 100 points and safetyman Larry Echols with 73 points. Both are juniors.

OFFENSIVE LEADERS

Offensively, the Cougars are paced by quarterbacks Marc Lyons, a junior, and Kirk Jones, a sophomore. Lyons has completed 51 of 119 passes for 597 yards while Jones has hit on 13 of 46 for 164 yards. Jones is the better runner of the two, having rushed for 114 yards in the past two games.

Junior fullback Dave Swanson is the leading BYU runner with 255 yards in 73 carries. Ron Wakley has 136 and Wally Hawkins 119. Top receivers are junior transfer Ed Romero with 21 catches for 228 yards and senior Casey Boyett with 20 grabs for 262 yards.

The Aggies will be counting heavily on the passing of quarterback John Pappas, the receiving of flanker Mike O'Shea and split end Ken DeMartini, and the running of fullback Albie Taylor.

Pappas has completed 68 of 140 passes for 1104 yards and 11 touchdowns through seven games to date. O'Shea has caught 37 for 625 yards and eight scores while DeMartini has 21 receptions for 316 yards and two TD's. Taylor has rushed for 554 yards in 124 carries and has an additional 243 yards on punt returns and 168 on kickoff runbacks.

Sophomore Steve Taylor of Salt Lake City will be starting in the place of injured Frank Nunn at fullback with George Tribble also expected to see heavy duty at both running back positions.

Y Booters Meet Utag Risk Unbeaten Mar

By Jim Hunt
Universe Sportswriter

BYU soccer's road show continues this weekend with BYU "A" scheduled to meet Utah "B" in Salt Lake, and BYU "B" faced with Weber State in Ogden.

Each BYU team is favored to win. Unbeaten BYU "A" should have no problem with weak Utah "B." The squad has scored 31 goals while giving up only six and is now bolstered by the addition of Chris McTavish.

McTavish, a Zanjan, has just transferred to BYU from United, the top-rated club in Salt Lake. His presence will increase the already blazing speed.

According to Coach De "This "A" team may be the best BYU history. The offense is the strongest, and the defense is the best." McTavish could make this defense.

The "B" team, disappointing 2-1 loss to Utah State "A," rebounded against Weber. With the highest score against BYU year, scoring three points, defense is suspect, having given up goals in the Y "A" squad. This will be the final "w" each team before the "B" bowl" when the Y teams Utah counterparts in Provo.

Utes Feats Tough Year by Roger Gillespie

Sports Editor

(Following is an open letter to the BYU football team.)

It's a tough year. A million examples could be cited to this, but one that follows is perhaps the most typical. The ball first and ten on the Utah 42-yard line. Less than a min in the first half and we trail by only a touchdown and an Eddy Romero breaks over the middle on a post pattern and I is in his hands at the three. But a perfect defensive play ball away and deprives us of a half-time tie.

Later, the Utes have the ball on their own 28-yard line. Ray Groh sprints wide, trying to run out the clock. But as he spots a ray of daylight, cuts back, outruns everybody and suddenly it's 20-7.

That kind of year. Like the palmist said to Coach Hudspeth at the season. "Good coach; good team; no luck."

Let of our 1-5 record this season, would it sound too corny proud of you? Never have you lost your poise. Never have you played below your ability. The only way we have lost by super-human efforts by the opposition and the red rotten luck.

You have been your own worst enemy. Since the advent of Ispeth we have come to expect winners.

I do owe you an apology for our occasional lack of trust. No label as "fair weather fans" really don't know us.

Waiting strikes Saturday in the same place for a fifth time, you carry off the wagon wheel!!

Freshman Host Cadets

BYU's freshman football squad will be looking for victory Friday in the closing game of the season when coach Les Miller's Kittens play host to the Air Force Frosh.

Game time is 2 p.m. The site of the game has been switched to the Provo High School football field. Provo radio station KLYV will broadcast the game.

The Kittens are 0-3 for the season and will be facing an Air Force team which BYU hasn't defeated since Marc Lyons and Harold Monson teamed up to beat AFA, 14-6, in 1965.

Ricks College made the best out of BYU's mistakes Saturday at Rexburg to win 27-23.

Defensive end Joe Liljenquist kicked three field goals and two PAT's for BYU to lead the scoring. Fullback Stan Frazer scored on a short run and Eddie Camstren passed to tailback Pete Van Valkenberg to account for the BYU touchdowns.

COUGAR STALWARTS

Wingback Dan Taylor is leading the frosh residents after three games. Taylor's best game was six receptions for 50 yards in the 13-7 loss to Utah.

Van Valkenberg is the leading rusher for BYU. Other rushing leaders are Taylor and Frazer.

Dating back to at least 1952, BYU freshmen have always won at least one game during the short season, Friday will be the Kittens' last chance to post a win.

Y Ruggers On Road

Both BYU rugby teams will swing into action again this weekend as BYU "A" meets Bountiful at Bountiful at 4 p.m. and BYU "B" meets Salt Lake at Westminster after its Homecoming football game.

BYU "A" will be out to make up for the 8-6 tie against Colorado. Fullback Dale Johnson may not see action because of an injury suffered Saturday and will be missed.

BYU "B" will have its hands full against Salt Lake but should do well in light of its performance against the University of Colorado "B."

Lower Campus Converts To Multi-Purpose Center

With the closing of the Laboratory Schools on the lower campus last May, BYU's old campus is now buzzing with different kinds of activities.

It's a multi-purpose center for BYU departments, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and Provo City Schools.

Located in the Education Building (main building fronting University Avenue at Fifth North) are offices and work areas for the BYU Educational Information and Guidance Center for LDS Students, the South Utah Student Placement Program, the Department of Seminars and Institutes of Religion, and a research and museum area for the BYU Communications Services Dept.

HIGH SCHOOL HELD

The Educational Information and Guidance Center, under the direction of Dr. Lynn Eric Johnson, evaluates for high school students transcripts and other educational records including test scores and personal recommendations. In addition, the center will suggest educational programs which would be a special benefit to individual students, and will make arrangements for personal counseling at any LDS campus.

The center is operated jointly by BYU and the Church Schools, and encourages high school seniors or graduates to take advantage of the service.

Seven case workers for the South Utah Agency of the Indian Placement Program of the Church have offices on the second floor of the Education Bldg.

Covering the area from the Point of the Mountain to the Arizona border, each of these seven case workers has 85 Indian students and foster families to visit each month.

INDIAN PLACEMENT

With headquarters for the program in Salt Lake City, the Indian Student Placement Program of the Church has grown by 1,000 students this year, with 3,100 now enrolled. Another 1,000 students are expected next year as Northern California opens to the program.

Southern LDS families in California, Washington, Colorado, Utah, Arizona, Georgia, and four western provinces of Canada already participate in the program—the largest of its kind in the world.

Speech Criticism

Class Offered

A special class in speech criticism designed to offer practical experience in evaluating various forms of speech activity will be conducted by Dr. Gary L. Peterson, assistant professor of Speech and Drama.

The class begins today and will meet each Thursday through Dec. 5 from 6:30-9 p.m., in F-201 Hazen Fine Arts Center.

It is especially designed for those who desire to become skilled and sensitive in judgement and criticism of speaking contexts. Oratory, extemporaneous speaking, oral reading and debate will be the main speech forms considered by Dr. Peterson.

Currently in his third year on the BYU faculty, Dr. Peterson received his B.S. degree from the University of Utah in 1960 and his Master of Arts and Ph.D. from Ohio University in 1961 and 1965.

For three years he was on the faculty of the University of Washington in Seattle. Dr. Peterson has worked with intercollegiate forensic programs, summer institutes, and workshops in speech activities in both Ohio and Washington.

Registration for the course will be at the first class sessions or in 242 Herald R. Clark Bldg. Special Courses and Conferences.

Faulty rear lights, head-lights and stop-threes as the leading causes for rejection of the more than 350 thousand cars and trucks failing the 20th annual National Vehicle Safety-Check. Turn signals, brakes and tires followed in that order.

The Seminars and Institutes Dept. has a curriculum laboratory on the third floor of the Education Bldg., where original manuscripts and teaching materials are prepared under the direction of Don Jesse. The department also has a teaching and observation lab on the second floor for BYU students studying to become seminary teachers.

Also on the second floor is a work room in which Mrs. Anna B. Hart, long-time lab school English and history teacher, is identifying BYU historically, under the auspices of the College of Education.

For the BYU Communications Services, the fourth floor is housing or will house a photographic research lab, a camera repair shop, a video taping room, and a museum of old radios, motion picture and slide projectors and television sets.

MISSIONARY CLASSROOMS

The Arts Building has general classrooms on the first floor, used in the evenings by the Missionary Training School; the BYU New World Archeological Foundation will have a museum lab for processing, and offices on the second floor; and the third floor will house experimental classes in education, media systems, and a Remote Information Retrieval System (RIRS) area in careers formerly used in training language students.

The former Elementary School building is filled with children's voices again as 49 students in six classes attend the Institute of Special Education, jointly sponsored by BYU and the Provo City Schools.

Three classes are held for mentally retarded children six to eight years of age, nine to 12, and 12 to 15. In addition, there are three classes for students with learning disabilities. These students have normal intelligence but have perceptual or neurological problems that impair normal learning.

Hot lunches brought from the Maeser School are served daily, and the Provo City Schools furnishes a bus service.

Housed in the College Hall building is the BYU Education Ctr. for training college students in psychology, counseling, education teaching, and special education. Under the direction of Harmon, the center conducts classes in special education tests to diagnose problem school students.

HOMES BY COMPUTER

UNIVAC 1108 computer at the University of Utah is being experimentally to aid architects in designing homes. The system design details in three dimensions on a television

Computer Used In Home Design

Before long, you may plan your dream home with the aid of a computer.

The computer will show you various designs, and any special features which you desire. It will even take you "inside" rooms.

The University of Utah is developing such a system, using a UNIVAC 1108 computer to display designs on a small television-like screen.

In an architect's or builder's office, the system would work like this:

You would give the general specifications for your home.

Using a typewriter-like device, the architect would send these details to the computer.

The computer, in turn, would respond on the screen with a shaded perspective picture of the house.

By manipulating a control stick, resembling an airplane's, the architect could then rotate the image of the house so that you could view it from all sides.

Since the designs are three dimensional, he could even show you the interiors of rooms.

If you wanted a "standard" design, the architect would simply give the computer an identification number. The design would flash on the screen in less than a second.

Probably, however, the client will want some changes made—rooms enlarged, windows deleted or moved, porches changed, and so on. The architect commands the computer to make these changes. The results immediately show on the screen. The computer will even tell whether certain changes are undesirable; if relocating a door, for instance, causes it to hit another door.

Finally, after architect and client have decided on a design, the computer will produce exact drawings for blueprints.

Church Goes Oriental

By Deborah Reyna
University Feature Writer

It is Sunday morning and the members are arriving for church. Quick "Hello's" and "How are you's" are exchanged as people move to their seats.

At the end of the prelude music, Mona Peng, branch Relief Society president, stands before the group and says, "We would like to welcome you to Relief Society this morning."

About the same time, in another room, a similar greeting is given by Thomas Shiao-Jen Liu to his fellow priesthood-bearers. With these greetings, church has officially begun.

The above describes the beginnings of two typical meetings of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. But the branch described isn't very typical to most BYU wards. It is the newly-formed Asian Branch of the BYU Fourth Stake.

The idea of forming an Asian branch became a reality last summer when William R. Siddoway, president of the BYU Fourth Stake and the Stake High Council decided to form the branch. Its uniqueness lies in the fact that the branch membership is made up of approximately 50 foreign students from Asian countries.

Except for the branch president, who is Dr. Lester Britsch, of the Asian Studies Dept., all other branch positions are filled by the Asian students.

According to Dr. Britsch, there are two main purposes for the establishment of the Asian branch. First, it will give the Asian students a chance to develop in leadership ability. "By giving job assignments to these students, they become more active, and gain a better understanding of the church organization," he said.

The second reason expressed by President Britsch was that the branch would be an aid to the missionary cause among Asian students.

He further commented that, "The foreign students who come from Asia are among the cream of the Asian members of The Church. They come here to learn about The Church and how it functions in the United States, particularly Utah. It is our duty as members to help them strengthen their testimonies and give them the leadership training necessary for them to be effective church leaders in their own countries."

The first counselor in the branch presidency is Kelli Oh, a 28-year-old graduate student from Korea. Kelli had a great amount of experience with the church in Korea before he decided to come to BYU. Presently he is working towards a master's degree in education.

Katsuhiko Kajiyama is the second counselor in the branch presidency. He is a Japanese student, majoring in commercial art. Katsuhiko has won several honors for his window displays, and is designing the window displays for the BYU Bookstore.

Today Opens With Recitals On Liszt

Noted artists, composers and educators from many parts of the country are converging on BYU for the Second Annual Liszt Festival sponsored by the American Liszt Society.

At least six recitals and numerous lectures are scheduled over the three day conference by the admirers of the 19th-century Hungarian pianist and composer. Chairman is Dr. Ralph Woodward of BYU.

Dr. Louis F. Wheelwright, dean of BYU's College of Fine Arts and Communications, will welcome members to the opening session at 10 a.m. today. He will be followed by Dr. David Z. Husher of Radford College, Virginia, outlining the future plans of the society.

A luncheon will be held in the Skyroom of the Wilkinson Center following a recital by Yael-Lam Hong, native of Hong Kong and now a faculty member of Piedmont College, Georgia. The afternoon program will begin with a lecture-recital on "The Late Piano Works of Franz Liszt" by Dr. William Goode of Manchester, Pa.

Another lecture-recital, "The Last Years," by Alan Mandel of Washington, D.C., is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. and the first day will wind up with a concert featuring early and late versions of Liszt's songs in the de Jong Concert Hall at 8:15 p.m.

Soloists will be Fietz Nielsen, mezzo-soprano; Kurt Weinmann, baritone; and Margaret Woodward, soprano. The Utah Valley Symphony, conducted by Dr. Glenn Williams, will play the "Totentanz" with Paul Pollei at the piano.

The second day's program (Friday) will begin at 10 a.m. with "The First and Final Transcendental Etudes," a lecture-recital by Joseph Banowetz of Central Michigan University. A noted concert pianist, he has toured Mexico, Canada, United States and throughout Europe, including the Soviet Union.

In the afternoon Larry Walk of North Texas State University will give a recital of piano works featuring song transcriptions. He has concentrated extensively in Mexico and United States and with the nation's leading orchestras.

New information concerning "Little Known Organ Works" is the title of a lecture to be given by Louis L. Balogh of Cleveland, Ohio, at 3:30 p.m. The public is especially invited to attend the evening's concert at 8:15 p.m. in the Salt Lake Tabernacle by Dr. Robert Cundick, the Tabernacle Organist. The "Mass for Male Voices" will be performed by the BYU Male Chorus.

A song recital by Antonia Loranze, the Hungarian-born soprano now on the faculty of New York University and The Mannes College of Music, will be the highlight of the final morning session (Saturday).

Robert Cundick To Perform Fri.

Dr. Robert Cundick, Salt Lake Tabernacle Organist, will give a concert in the Salt Lake Tabernacle Friday at 8:15 p.m. as part of the Second Annual Liszt Festival.

The BYU Male Chorus will sing Franz Liszt's "Mass for Male Voices" and the public is invited to attend. The Festival, organized by The American Liszt Society, is being held at BYU Nov. 7-9. Most of the lectures and recitals will be held in the Recital Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Robert Cundick was born in Salt Lake City in 1926 and began his organ studies at the age of eleven. A year later he received his first appointment as an organist of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. With the well-known American organ virtuoso Alexander Schommer as his teacher, Dr. Cundick went on to play numerous recitals in both the United States and Europe.

Two Casts Featured In Opera

Leading public officials, celebrities and patrons of the arts in Utah will attend the gala performance of the opera "Andrea Chénier" when it opens Monday in the de Jong Concert Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

The BYU Opera Workshop's production of Umberto Giordano's fine 19th-century opera during the week of Nov. 11-16 will mark one of the rare occasions this opera has been seen in Utah. It has, however, been played 44 times in 13 seasons by the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York.

"Andrea Chénier" is a poignant love story based on the real life adventures of Andrea Chénier, France's leading poet during the French Revolution's time of terror.

At first Chénier defended the new order and its principles, but as control of his beloved country passed into the hands of extremists, his sense of moderation and love of liberty marked him as an opponent of Revolutionary excess.

He was condemned as an "enemy of the people" by Robespierre, a chief architect in the reign of terror, and thrown into prison where he managed to write some of his finest poems.

In the opera, Chénier's love for the beautiful Maddalena de Coigny is cut short by the guillotine. In real life, if his execution had been delayed by three days, Chénier would have been saved because the notorious Robespierre was murdered and his associates overthrown.

Dr. Brandt Curtis of the Metropolitan Opera is artistic director; Dr. Preston professor of dramatic arts, director; and Dr. Ralph director of orchestras, will conduct.

The production will feature 85 supported by the BYU Symphony. The six student leads will be with faculty members alternate nights.

Over a hundred costumes will be directly from Hollywood—large sets to capture the atmosphere of Revolutionary France designed by Prof. Charles Old. Other costumes are being of the BYU Costume Shop by Warner.

THE HARVARD GRADUATE SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

invites you to meet Mr. Richard Nohl, Assistant Dean and Director of Admissions, MBA on November 7 to discuss higher education in the field of business.

The MBA Program at Harvard is based on the experience-oriented case method to develop the practical, analytical, and decision-making capacities that are the key to managerial effectiveness. Requirements for admission to the two-year course leading to a degree of Master of Business Administration (MBA) include a college degree in any field of concentration, a standing in the top third of the class, and a record of progressive achievement in campus activities, the community, military, or elsewhere.

Generous financial aid makes it possible for any student admitted to attend regardless of his financial resources.

Seniors and others who wish to speak with Mr. Nohl should contact the Placement Office for an appointment.
